IS STONEY CREEK DEAD?

From the Community News October 1926

Some people say it is, and some of those people live here. Let's just forget that saying and speak the other way. Lets boost Stoney Creek, if we think it is dead. Just look around and see the houses going up for the size of the village, it looks good to most of us. Then look at the new church hall just erected; see the very much alive bunch of boys who helped and shingled its roof in one day; see the busy women who cooked a fine supper for those boys, as well as a midday lunch. Then start at the east end and watch the business done by Jack Lottridge with his coal business. His team and truck are out all and every day employing several men, and even his dog keeps barking the glad news of plenty of work. Then comes J.W. Beaumont, with as fine a horticultural business as you can locate twenty-five miles around; this also employs extra labour. The Basket Factory; under the management of Joe Piott; a bunch of men and women never out of work; trucks and teams hauling and delivering day in and day out. Cross over to Mac's tire shop, and you will find Mac has got lots of spare tires but no spare time; he seems to be busy all day long. J.E. Jones' printing business also. Milmine's lumber works is another go-ahead factory father and son with hired help always on the job. You got to go there to see them, which is sure proof of a busy business.

The garage, although a new management is going strong. Walt Beswick keeps driving away nails instead of flies in his blacksmith shop. One can see teams in there any time they pass, and lots of wagons outside that need attention when he has no horses to shoe. The Saltfleet Wire Works, with another factory just put up, keeps buzzing away making all kinds of basket hooks, also handles for hampers and many other wire products. Lawrence Bros. with a staff of helpers hauling out thousands of cement blocks and pipes, with a heavy truck delivering all over the township. A large family of Boden boys, who with their father have got established a very satisfactory and profitable furnace and galvanizing pipe business going strong all the time. Across the road is the village blacksmith named Glidden, hammering away all day. If Stoney Creek was dead, he will surely let you know it is very much alive by the sparks he keeps sending abroad.

Then comes Gee's furniture repairing and joinery works, also W. Fisher's building plant, Lobb's painting business, Lee's car painting business, Billy Scott with his shoe repairing outfit. Dick Bland's carpentering concern, and as regards, we can surely boast well of the grocery end of it. Miss Frances St. John who seems to have customers from Red Hill to Grimsby; Twaddle's, Millen's and the MacNeil bakery establishment, older established businesses doing a whale of a business. Then Morris and Stoddart's candy stores, Cline's flour and feed, Murray Deans and the McClung Bros. butcher business, also two great fruit receiving houses, John Clough & Son and the Growers, both of whom send carloads of fruit to all parts of the world. There is also a Royal Bank and the Hydro office, as well as Wepler's grocery store and Lee hardware. All these help to make a place of some importance, and all of them under the control of young people with ambitions for a greater business, which can only be accomplished by the residents buying as much as possible at home, and not forgetting at all times to Boost the Place they live.

101 YEARS AGO:

January 25, 1896: While Hugh Bogen, of Saltfleet, was loading ice on the lake shore below Stony Creek on Friday afternoon the horses ran away. Bogen was knocked down and the wheels went over him, but he escaped serious injury. The team was caught at Van Wagner's hill.

ERLAND LEE (MUSEUM) HOME

Just a reminder to the membership that the Erland Lee (Museum) Home is featuring Patterns In Light, a travelling exhibition from the Royal Ontario Museum. This exhibition traces the history of glass tableware in Canada from 1870 to 1930. This exhibition is organized and circulated by the Royal Ontario Museum through its Outreach Program. The Outreach Program is supported by the Ministry of Culture, Recreation and Tourism, Government of Ontario, and the Department of Canadian Heritage, Government of Canada. The Erland Lee (Museum) Home would like to acknowledge the financial support of the Rotary Club of Hamilton in obtaining this exhibition. Also, a wonderful exhibit of coal oil lamps is on view in our Drive House, courtesy of the Stoney Creek Historical Society membership.

OOPS I GOOFED:

In the last newsletter, the article "The Mills of Stoney Creek" was reported to have been written by Doug Jones, it was in fact the work of member Donald Jones U.E. My apologies Donald.

THE PRESIDENT'S CORNER

What would we have if our Stoney Creek ancestors had not the fore-sight to preserve the past??

There would not be a Battlefield House Museum, the Monument or the park we enjoy, Smith's Knoll or the Erland Lee Museum Home. These memories of our past would not be available for citizens or visitors to enjoy. The Women's Institute, originating in Stoney Creek, would not be a world-wide organization with so many hundreds of members world-wide.

While travelling through the state of Georgia in the USA, we had the opportunity to visit Fort Frederica. This is a National Archeological site which had been the first British outpost in Georgia from 1721 to 1736, a site not restored but preserved, showing the foundations and portions of the original fort, even giving some information on the original residents of the Fort. All very well displayed and maintained. This, although maintained by the Federal Government of the U.S.A., was made possible with the assistance of many volunteers who realized the importance of the history of the site.

The following is a quotation by Mr. Nick Honerkamp, Historical Archeologist for the Fort that I would like to pass on to you -

We only have one past,
And if it's destroyed,
It's gone forever,

Preservation is the one thing we can do to ensure that future generations will have
A past to appreciate.

Opportunities come to us and we must recognize them for what they are. An attempt must be made to preserve and restore these so that our children and grandchildren will have the opportunity to know the past.

MORE ABOUT TOLL ROADS:

A special meeting was held by the County Council on July 27, 1891 about the Saltfleet Road. Nesbitt, Bicknell & Gauld had written to the council concerned about the propriety of ordering the cessation of tolls on the road until the allowance for repairs had been expended.

Major Van Wagner asked for a grant of 25 cents a day for each horse from the county while serving at the annual drill of the field battery.

The Barton and Glanford road company had abandoned a portion of its road.

A letter was read from the attorney-general, stating that the government intended to advertise the Dundas and Waterloo road for lease or sale.

CHARLOTTE BRONTE:

This poem was found in diaries that were written by my husbands Gr. Gr. Gr. Uncle Graham Weir in 1880. It was the first of the year and it still holds true to-day.

There are three things to admire and three times three to always keep in mind
And the three things to admire are
Intellectual power, Dignity and Gracefulness
Three things to love
Courage, Gentleness and affection
Three things to hate
Cruelty, Arrogance and Ingratitude
Three things to delight in
Frankness, Freedom and Beauty
Three things to wish for Health, Friends and a Cheerful Spirit
Three things to avoid
Idleness, Loquacity and Flippant Jesting
Three things to fight for
Honour, Country and Home
Three things to govern
Temper, Tongue and Conduct
Three things to think about Life, Death and Eternity.

TOLL ROADS Continued from page 2

The special committee appointed to examine the Saltfleet road reported that it was not advisable to spend the money granted by the county.

The report was adopted with very little discussion.

Councilor Wardell moved that the council discontinue taking toll on the Saltfleet road, and that the road be placed in the same position as the Governor's road.

The motion was carried.

(It is over one hundred years since this item appeared in the Hamilton Weekly Spectator on July 28, 1891, and we are hearing rumours that the provincial government is considering toll roads in the future.)

VINEMOUNT

From the Community News August 1926

We had some freak weather this year, and also some freak storms. Last week lightning entered the house of Arthur Fortman and very kindly went out again without doing any damage, although it travelled through a bed which luckily was unoccupied. The hydro line was also stuck recently.

ARMORIAL BEARINGS:

Have you ever wondered about the Official Crest of Stoney Creek ???

This information was taken from the official program for the Inagural Meeting dated January 8th. 1974 .

The Arms of Stoney Creek were granted by Letters of Patent from the Heraldic College, England, under the date of October 15, 1956.

The Arms refer to the history of the Town and are described as follows:

ARMS: "Azure, on a Mount a representation of a Canadian Farmhouse of the late eighteenth century proper; a Chief per pale Gules and Or, thereon to the dexter on a Mount, an ancient Cannon also proper, and to the Sinister, a Maple Leaf also Gules."

CREST: "On a wreath Or and Vert, a representation of the Monument at Stoney Creek, commemorating the Battle of that name fought there on 6th June, 1813."

SUPPORTERS: "On the dexter side a Woman proper Robed Azure, a Scarf draped about her waist and shoulder proper, and on the sinister side, a Hind proper."

MOTTO: "ANTIQUUM ASSERO DECUS" which means, "I claim ancient honour."

The dexter Supporter represents MARY GAGE who tended the wounded of both sides during and after the Battle of Stoney Creek, and the Farmhouse, now a museum and known as "Battlefield House", was where she carried out her work of mercy.

EXPRESSIONS:

by John Hencher

We use the expression "flash in the pan". It also comes from the old muzzle loader rifles. In order to make a gun discharge, some gunpowder was placed on a "pan" to catch the spark from the flint and steel cock. The powder in the pan caught fire which passed through a small hole in the side of the barrel and thus ignited the charge in the barrel. Sometimes the powder in the pan would flash without igniting the charge. We use today, the expression "A flash in the pan" to describe or characterize an unsuccessful effort to accomplish something.

THE STORY OF THE UNITED EMPIRE LOYALISTS

submitted by Martha Hempfill U.E.

The story of the Loyalists began with the prolonged fighting known as the French and Indian War which was the American portion of the Seven Years War 1756-1763, in which the British and some colonial troops protected the thirteen American colonies, and finally with the fall of Quebec in 1759 took possession of French Canada. England was now heavily in debt and unwisely levied the Stamp Act to help meet the costs of the recent war. The Colonists now found themselves free of the French threat to the north, and with some anti-monarchist elements ready to make the most of grievances against what they felt were unfair taxes. At first only constitutional changes were sought by men of standing such as Franklin, Jefferson and Washington. However, open rebellion developed. The majority of the colonists did not want to break away from England but were urged on by hot headed insurgents. Those who remained actively loyal to Britain were subjected to indignities, imprisonment, confiscation of their property and even death. The rebellion lasted from 1775-1783.

In the end the rebels were victorious and the Loyalists were forced to get out of the country. Many returned to England, some went to the West Indies and about 40,000 found their way into Upper Canada. Some 30,000 Loyalists were transported by sea from Boston and New York to settle in the Maritimes. A wild and lonely chore faced them where the bush had to be cleared before they could even pitch their tents or build rough shacks.

Thousands of others from upper New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts, and Vermont had to find their way along dangerous forest trails or by water on Lake Champlain to Sorel on the St. Lawrence. Thence they made their way to the north shore of lake Ontario where they were given free land to settle in the region around the Bay of Quinte and Kingston, which was the official and center of the new surveys. Some 13 townships were divided into lots.

Many of the Loyalists were disbanded soldiers from the Loyalist regiments. From the Mohawk valley Sir John Johnson brought the King's Royal Regiment of New York. The best known Provincial Corps in the Niagara region was Butler's Rangers (1777-1784), commanded by Colonel John Butler. They were based at Fort Niagara and were an effective fighting force allied with their Indian brothers in a civil war against the rebels. When disbanded in the 1870's the Rangers and their families rapidly spread over this area.

These first white settlers moved westward along Lake Ontario to the head of the Lake, southward along the Niagara river and westward along Lake Erie to Long Point. In order to receive a grant of 200 acres of Crown Lands, the Loyalist had to clear three acres of virgin forest, build and maintain the road adjacent to his land and build a habitation 16 feet by 24 feet.

A large percentage of Loyalists were of non-British extraction, many were of German, Swiss, French, Dutch, American Indian and African descent. They transcended all social classes from wealthy merchants to farmers and tradespeople. The sons of these settlers preserved Canada to the British crown in the War of 1812.

In short, the Loyalists were those Americans who:

- * resided in what is now the continental United States before the Revolutionary War of 1775-1783.
- * remained loyal to King George III during the Revolution.
- * took up arms as soldiers in one of the American loyalist provincial corps.
- * had property and/or possessions confiscated because of their loyalty to the crown.
- * settled in British North America after the Revolution.

HUNTING FOREBEARS

I received a letter recently from a genealogical friend who has an interest in "Harmony Hall" the home of Jonathan Davis, located on Concession 6, lots 31 and 32. Mr. & Mrs. W. T. Barnes and their children, who lived in Buffalo, N. Y. visited the old homestead every summer. Mrs. Barnes was the second wife of W. T. and was Matilda Jane Davis, the daughter of Jonathan. Louisa Jane Barnes, their daughter, married Moss Ingersoll Olmsted in 1856. My correspondent has old letters written by Louisa Jane describing the house and its contents. The house was sold about 1882 to Thomas Preston. At about this time an auction was held. Olmsteds were living in Ancaster at the time, and Moss was persuaded to attend to buy the grandfather clock and the side-saddle which Hannah Philips had ridden on the trip to Canada in 1792. Louisa was bitterly disappointed when her husband returned and told her that the clock had not been included in the sale and as for the saddle, "it was an old moth-eaten thing which was not worth carting home", so he did not buy it.

My correspondent hopes to one day find the advertisement that may have appeared in some newspaper announcing the auction.

In the 1891 Farmer's Directory (Saltfleet), Thomas Preston is listed as a freeholder, Lot 31, Concession 6 and his postal address was Mt. Albion.

The Williams family owned this property for four generations, and it was Ruby Williams who attempted to have the house preserved to no avail.

The picture in "Saltfleet, Then and Now" has erroneously named Victoria Inn as Harmony Hall. A picture of Harmony Hall can be found in Mabel Burkholder's column "Out of the Storied Past" in the Hamilton Spectator, June 30, 1951.

REPORT FROM BATTLEFIELD HOUSE

by Roel Van der Meiden

Spring is finally here and the House is celebrating this event with a Daffodil Tea on Sunday, April 27. There will be two sittings: one at 1:00 p.m. and one at 3:00 p.m. "Lady Victoria" will spin a wonderful yarn about the tea-drinking customs from Jane Austen's to Queen Victoria's time. We are now anxiously awaiting the daffodils to burst forth with bloom....

We are also very busy planning the Re-enactment, to be held on Saturday and Sunday, June 7 & 8. We are expecting to have that wonderful actor again, who so stirringly plays the role of Indian War Hero Tecumseh. Also, a "travelling doctor" will be there, who, according to Susan, does an excellent job. She saw him in action at another re-enactment. The navy will be represented by boat builder Gill Bibby and a blacksmith will tell the visitor everything about his craft. The sutlers will be in their special square again, and with all the different costumes and uniforms, the tents and cooking fires, it promises to be another exciting weekend.

We are expecting about 500 students for a "History in Action Day" on Friday the 6th, who will learn first-hand what life - and war - in the early 1800's was all about.

The new gallery space in the museum is gradually being finished. We are the recipient of an ornate banner, which was commissioned by Sara Calder. Sara Calder was a granddaughter of James and Mary Gage. She was the first president of the Women's Wentworth Historical Society, which saved the House from demolition. The Head-of-the-Lake Historical Society, which has owned this banner for a long time, has donated it to our museum. They will make a special box for it and eventually, it will be available for public viewing.

Our "Pancakes in the Park" event, turned out to be a very cold affair. Quite a few people showed up for it, though, but we will hold it a little later next year.

Heritage Day, in February, brought out so many people, despite a bad day, weather-wise, that many guests had to stand. It is good to know that more and more people are becoming aware of our rich heritage.

And, tying right in with spring: our long-time Battlefield House employee, Mary Gallagher, was presented with a precious granddaughter, Kayla, last week. She is showing pictures already! Congratulations Mary!
